Hi Folks,

Although not yet listed on the New York Stock Exchange or NASDAG, nevertheless my business is booming. Thanks to all of you who have purchased books, taken classes, or asked me to write programs for you. It is greatly appreciated.

Unfortunately, current obligations seem to require about twice the available hours in any given day. :-(

As a result, I am pleased to announce I have hired an associate to help me out. Starting April 15th, Dick Jackson, formerly of the National Research Council in Canada, will be joining me in my business.

Dick is a long-time IDL user and programmer who brings a wealth of medical imaging and computer science experience with him. His primary responsibilities here will be to help out with our fast growing IDL programming and consulting business and to take over the Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming Web Page. If you have ideas for improvements or tips that you would like to see on the page, please contact Dick as soon as possible. He has lots of ideas for improvements and upgrades. His e-mail address is djackson@dfanning.com.

Writing IDL programs is often lonely work. I am thrilled to have someone around who not only shares my excitement about programming with IDL, but who is crazy enough to leave a secure job to join me in this always uncertain adventure. I'm sure you will see Dick's name often in the weeks to come. Please join me in welcoming him to this IDL community.

Best Regards,

David
