> Mark Elliott (mark@mail.mmrrcc.upenn.edu) writes:
>
>> I'd like to run IDL (from UNIX) in batch mode with a command >> like:
>>
>> unixprompt> idl batchprog.pro
>>
>> How can I provide additional arguments to be used by the batch >> program. For example, is there a syntax like:
>>
>> unixprompt> idl batchprog.pro inputfile.txt
>>
>> or
>>
>> unixprompt> idl batchprog.pro 5 3.78 "John Doe" 24.0
I implemented such a scheme by creating a unix shell which sets up various parameters before running idl. The unix shell writes into a file which is executed by IDL by means of the "setenv IDL_STARTUP ..."
scheme. The shell passes along arguments from the command line, which may contain IDL commands.
--
Serdar S. Manizade <serdar.manizade@gsfc.nasa.gov>
Airborne Topographic Mapper Project
NASA/GSFC/Wallops Flight Facility, Wallops Island, VA