Subject: ION Experiences?

I have several IDL applications that take in data, manipulate it a bit, and then make some plots. I would like to make it, or something similar a "web program". Now, one option is to consider the IDL a proto-type, and rewrite it in Java, and post it as an applet.

The other option is to spend ~ $5,000 for ION. Does anyone have experience good/bad in this regard? $5,000 is no small amount of money. On the other hand, the development time to port to Java does not come cheap either.

Thanks a lot.

P.S. email is ok also - I often dont get back to this board for weeks.

-Gary
