
Subject: Re: Interactively building GUIs in IDL 5.1?
Posted by mallors on Fri, 10 Jul 1998 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In article <6o4o9p$eps$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>, dEdmundson@Bigfoot.com writes:

>
>
> It seems that WIDED, the interactive widget builder, has been obsoleted > in IDL 5.1. The thought of writing widget code by hand turns my stomach.
> Surely there is a nice interactive tool written in IDL for constructing > a GUI?
>
> (No, I'm not on a windows system and so I can't opt for a Delphi GUI > tied to IDL via ActiveX.)
>
> If such a code builder doesn't exist, is there sufficient interest > to warrant it?
>

I believe a widget builder is on the drawing board for IDL 5.2. I got the impression that it is a high-priority feature for the new release, but we will just have to wait and see...

-bob mallozzi

--

Robert S. Mallozzi
<http://cspar.uah.edu/~mallozzir/>
