
Subject: Re: Returning result from a widget program.
Posted by DAMIANO ZILIO on Fri, 10 Jul 1998 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Imanol Echave wrote:

> Hi people:
>
> I'm writting an IDL function that works with widgets. The user calls an IDL > function that shows an widget interface to input data. When the user pushes the > "OK" button the function has to return a result that depends on the input data.
> My problem is where to store this result to return it. I can't use the UVALUE of > the widgets because when I want to return the result the widgets are destroyed.
> Any advice?

Why don't you try with `get_value=var`?

If you need the parameter `var` in an another program (or in an ather subroutine) I suggest to put it in a common block.

I hope that helps

--

Damiano Zilio
