
Subject: IDL vs. Matlab ?

My organisation is currently in the process of acquiring eval. versions of both Matlab (v4 I think) and IDL (v3.5 I think).

We will most likely be buying one or the other, so: does anyone out there have experience of both ?

We want to do data analysis and some visualization, although the main task will be analysis, which will be partially using our own libraries which I believe may be linked fairly easily with either product (right ?).

Am I on completely the wrong track here, or are the products reasonably similar in both their intended users and their functionality ?

thanks in advance for any advice/information...

Perhaps Email would be best - if interest is there I can summarise in a week or two...
