Subject: Re: Mac top level widget Posted by Pavel Romashkin on Thu, 22 Jul 1999 07:00:00 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

- > Which MacOS are you using?
- 8.1, running off of the standard and extended partitions.
- > Pauses are usually due to an extension or HD
- > driver.

Oh, pauses would be fine! Freezes and crashes is what I like less. I has only once over a year crashed IDL on my Win95 PC, doing same things as I do on Unix and Mac. My problem is not the software on the Mac either - it is a computer itself. We have a few of these clones of which one works like a charm, mine works so-so and another one can't work for longer than 15 minutes without a crash :-(I feel it is a poor SCSI bus design. IDL never crashed the OS for me on any platform, although I had IDL itsel crash numerously when doing some wierd things and overusing pointers.

To be short: IDL is great! Macs I don't like although GUI is nice.

Cheers,

Pavel