

---

Subject: Re: NT IDL Crashes

Posted by Pavel Romashkin on Thu, 26 Aug 1999 07:00:00 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I run IDL 5.2 on a fairly old AMD-K6 200 at home (to test cross-platform compatibility). Never crashes; I am using archaic Windows 95. I thought NT is more robust than 95. Maybe, "not enough memory"?

Cheers,

Pavel

Martin Downing wrote:

> Hi All,

>

> I'm running IDL5.2 under windows NT4.0(sp4) and I am getting fed up with the > number of IDL program crashes (about 3-6 a day). They happen both during > program code execution and also just doing editing in the IDLDE. Doesnt kill > NT, just IDL, however I never had this experience on UNIX (admittedly using > IDL4).

> Is this a typical experience of windows users ? or should i have my head (or > at least hardware) examined!

>

> (anyone from RSI listening?)

>

> Martin

>

> --

> Martin Downing

> Clinical Research Physicist,

> Grampian Orthopaedic Clinical Research Unit,

> Woodend Hospital, Grampian Healthcare Trust,

> Eday Road, Aberdeen, Scotland. AB15 6LS

---