
Subject: Re: IDL time test with a PowerMac G4

Posted by Pavel Romashkin on Wed, 06 Oct 1999 07:00:00 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Go for it Martin, the CPU case colors are so pretty, it looks so nice, too, like as a soap dish! Who cares it costs twice as much as a decent Pentium... Also, you can buy endless software updates without feeling much improvement in reliability. Trust me - a faster Mac reboots faster, I had older one that crashed as often as my new one (once per day on average; 3-5 times a day on a bad day, when, let's say, you try to work out in the field and adapt to a new network) and the new one takes 50% less time to reboot.

Cheers,
Pavel

"Martin.Schultz@dkrz.de" wrote:

> Wow that almost convinces me of buying a Mac next time. So far my experience > runs quite to the contrary: the faster the computer the longer it takes to > boot!
>
> Martin
