Subject: Re: IDL 5.3 here
Posted by R.Bauer on Mon, 06 Dec 1999 08:00:00 GMT

"J.D. Smith" wrote:

> In case you haven't seen it, IDL 5.3 has been officially announced. Among the > most interesting new features:
>
> *.RESET_SESSION command to eliminate the frequent restarts required by > heavy-duty programmers. Yeah!
>
> *regular expression and glob-style matching functionality for string searches.
>
> *ZLIB compression for reading and writing gzipped files throughout, including > SAVE's.
>
> And more...
>
> It seems for those Linux users that older versions are no longer supported -- > RedHat 6.0 is baselined as the minimum OS (which basically means glibc>2.1 for > those non-RH Linux users out there). I confirmed this with a segfault on my > RH5.2 (glibc 2.0.7) machine. Time to upgrade.
>
> JD
>
> --

I have since a few minutes idl5.3 installed.
The project editor is very nice but I don't found the feature to create an executable ....

Did someone know if this editor seen on windows is given to all other platforms too?

R.Bauer