
Subject: Re: ICUR Library

Posted by Fred Walter on Fri, 26 May 2000 07:00:00 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

landsman@my-deja.com wrote:

>
> p.a.howell@larc.nasa.gov wrote
>
>> Has the ICUR library moved? When trying to access these procedures, I >> get
>
>> Sorry, unable to open file
>> '/host/bluemoon/usr2/idllib/contrib/icur/ploterb.pro'
>
> One place the ICUR Library is still available is at
>
> ftp://moriarty.cofc.edu/pub/neff/icur/
>
> But this code is now pretty obsolete. A newer package I like which > does a lot of the same things (1-d spectra continuum normalization, > equivalent widths, line fitting...) is the IDL software for FUSE > (Far-ultraviolet spectrscopic Explorer) available at
>
> http://fuse.pha.jhu.edu/archive/sw/
>
> --Wayne Landsman landsman@mpb.gsfc.nasa.gov
>

> Sent via Deja.com <http://www.deja.com/>
> Before you buy.

Obsolete or not, the most up to date version of ICUR is at <http://sbast3.ess.sunysb.edu/fwalter/plan.html#SW>

and its still works!

Fred Walter
