
Subject: Re: create *.img-file in ENVI/IDL
Posted by cjengo on Mon, 12 Jun 2000 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

What makes a file an "ENVI" file is the associated text header (.hdr) file. Write your array to a file using 'writeu', then set-up a header file with 'envi_setup_head' using all the appropriate parameters. Be sure to set the write (/write) keyword... Took me a while to figure out why it wouldn't actually write the file to disk!

Chris

In article <8htpqg$seb$1@ac1.ewetel.de>,

> I'm just starting in programming with IDL in ENVI and I want to save > an > array to an ENVI-image-file *.img. But somehow I can't find the right > function.
>
> Can somebody help me?
>
> Thanks in advance,
> Joerg
>
>

Sent via Deja.com <http://www.deja.com/>
Before you buy.
