

---

Subject: Re: what does hyperspectral mean?
Posted by ian on Tue, 17 May 1994 15:54:06 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Word has it that at913@cleveland.Freenet.Edu (Mirko Vukovic) may have said:

>

> The subject says it all. Answers, references, examples are welcome

Hyperspectral means having a lot of frequencies, like AVIRIS (224), while multispectral means having more than one frequency, like Landsat (6?).

+Ian Novack (Particle Man and Comatose Reader)-----+ian@gomez.jpl.nasa.gov--+
| "...I was convinced that the public consisted | Jet Propulsion Lab |
| entirely of raging idiots." -- Dave Barry | Pasadena, CA |
+--Disclaimer: Had this been an actual opinion, it would still be mine.-----+

---