I have a demo of IDL and am considering buying it. I currently use Speakeasy and Mathematica and am very happy with Speakeasy, but not with support from the Speakeasy company. I want to replace Speakeasy with Mathematica, Matlab, or IDL and was wondering if I could get some opinions. I want to do number crunching and I hear that IDL is mostly imaging software. Actually I am very happy with Mathematica, but it seems to solve the same problems as Speakeasy 100X more slowly on the same machine. Thanks.
