
Subject: Re: Garbage collection and Memory
Posted by thompson on Sat, 04 Jun 1994 15:52:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

hevans@estwm0.wm.estec.esa.nl (Hugh Evans) writes:

> I have discovered that after using Wave for an extended period that it slowly > grabs more and more memory, even if new variables are not created, until > finally it runs out of core memory. Whereas by saving the session and > restarting it, the previous operation that crashed on a memory allocation > problem will complete successfully.

> This, by the way, is being done on VAX/VMS.

It also strikes me that you could save the session, use .RNEW to clear out all the memory, and restore it.

Bill Thompson
