Subject: Re: object oriented dilemma
Posted by Jason Li on Mon, 09 Oct 2000 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi David,

>
> I presume you mean you are taking a line of your image
> like this:
>
> line = (self.imagePointer)[5,]

That is what I was looking for. I had searched the manual all over, just could not find an example on how to dereference an element of a pointer that is pointing to an array. Basically I messed up the syntax. In hindsight, (*pointer)[i,j] makes a lot of sense.

Thanks very much! Now I can chuck along in my OOP adventure.

PS. Thanks for your recommendation on Arthur Riel's book.