I would suggest making a project file (in >5.3). Even if you name routines such that they don't autocompile, add them all to a .PRJ file and use "run project" or "compile modified...", and they will all compile. Besides, you cann add files that are not in the same directory, if you want to.

Cheers,
Pavel

Randall Skelton wrote:
>
> Hello,
>
> Thanks to all who answered my questions regarding passing BIG structures > into IDL from C and include statements...
>
> My next question is, can I get IDL to compile all the .pro files I > have in the local directory (i.e. .compile *.pro). At the moment, I have > things hardwired, but it would be nice if didn't explicitly need to give > exact filenames and pathes.
>
> Thanks
> Randall