ES&S is an Australian company which manufactures satellite, radar and environmental monitoring equipment.

At our Melbourne facility, we are developing a new satellite ground station. We require IDL programmers to work with us over the next three months in order to complete our current contracts. The system involves image processing of remote sensing data from NOAA and GMS. Further work in the same area is probable. We are open to all forms of employment, depending on the skills and availability of the applicants: contract, part time or full-time employment conditions can be discussed.

Interested applicants should send a detailed CV by email to gary@esands.com quoting SB45928 in the subject heading.
