Greetings:

I have an application that kicks off a PV-Wave application. If all of the licenses are in use, I would like PV-Wave to exit immediately instead of asking interactively if the user wants to wait for a license. Since this is a graphical application with no associated console window there is no way for the user to answer the question so the PV-Wave application just hangs in the background.

Are there any secret command line arguments or environment variables that can accomplish this?

Thanks,
Mark
