Subject: Re: Windows XP problems and 400 HASP key reasons Posted by John McLeod on Mon, 07 Jan 2002 18:17:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

IDL has informed us that "...We do offer home-use licenses that would allow vour colleagues to work from home as needed while maintaining the work licenses...." but we haven't explored this further.

John McLeod

"Andrew & Jo Cool" <cooladjc@chariot.net.au> wrote in message news:3C380BD7.85D0BF00@chariot.net.au...

>

> Rick Towler wrote:

>>

>> That is the question.

>>

- >> We too will be inconvenienced by this change of policy, as will many
- >> traveling IDL folk who have up until now enjoyed the freedom to carry their
- >> dongle.

>>

- >> I wish RSI would at least publish their reasoning behind this and offer an
- >> alternative solution. I don't mind requesting a temporary key on occasion
- >> but do they really want to issue me 50 keys good for each Saturday and
- >> Sunday of the year so if I decide to work at home on a weekend I can?

>>

>> -Rick

>

- > One reason given to me by an RSI source was that HASP keys cost RSI
- > USD$200 each.
- > By disposing of HASP keys, the price of PC licences fell by USD$200.
- > That's 200 good
- > reasons, methinks! Actually 400 good reasons here in Australia...

>

- > And I must go on record to say that RSI is bending over backwards to
- > provide
- > solutions to licence issues at my place of employment since the
- > withdrawal of most
- > of our HASP keys in favour of licences keyed to Ethernet card addresses
- > or PC HD Disk
- > Serial Numbers or keyed to particular Servers. And it's not every day I

```
> hand RSI a
```

> freebie compliment - ask 'em ;-)

> Andrew Cool

> DSTO Edinburgh, Adelaide, AUSTRALIA

> andrew.cool@dsto.defence.gov.au