Subject: Re: Null terminated strings
Posted by James Kuyper on Wed, 09 Jan 2002 14:19:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Malcolm Walters wrote:

...

> Firstly if you replace each 0B with a 10B using >   btest[where(btest eq 0B)]=10B > you can now print btest then you get the line breaks (This can be used in > message boxes etc.)
> Or if you want to go one further then split them using >   stest = strsplit(string(btest),string(10B),/extract)
>   print, stest
>   This is a jest
>   help,stest
>   <Expression>   STRING   = Array[4]
> I hope this is of some help.
> Malcolm Walters

Thanks! That sounds like exactly what I was looking for. I'm still enough of a newbie to have been unaware of the existence of strsplit().