Subject: Re: Overwriting the terminal output line
Posted by K. Bowman on Fri, 15 Feb 2002 19:20:05 GMT

In article <2aa6be0a.0202150853.181a3090@posting.google.com>, weitkamp@esrf.fr (Timm Weitkamp) wrote:

> I don't know how STATUSLINE works or what can be termed "simple", but > the following small modification to Ken's code (putting a CR in the > format string) works on VT-52 compatible terminals (is that the same > as ANSI?). I think it fails on Windows though (because the CR makes a > new line there). Here it is:
>
> FOR i = 0, 10 DO PRINT, i, FORMAT = '($, "i = " ,I4, > "'+STRING(13B)+'")'

This also works on a VT100 and is simpler than George McCabe's solution (using backspaces?).

Still doesn't work on my Mac though (CR makes a new line, similar to windows).

Thanks for the help,

Ken