
Subject: Re: Odd behavior of Device, cursor_image
Posted by Martin Downing on Tue, 05 Mar 2002 14:34:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

"David Fanning" <david@dfanning.com> wrote in message news:MPG.16e604d89333790c989820@news.frii.com...
> Rikagaku (t_launey@brain.riken.go.jp) writes:
>
>> I have a problem with cursor shape control.
>> According to the documentation, calls to DEVICE are sticky and should >> remain until explicitly changed to another value. However, it seems that >> calls to DEVICE,cursor_image=pattern, cursor_XY=[8,8], cursor_mask=mask >> do not follow this rule. The test program below should show the problem.
>> The shape of the cursor is supposed to change from a sad to a happy face >> as the cursor it moved toward the center of the window. Somehow, on my >> system (5.4, Win98) its blinking arrow/face as it is moved. Any help >> would be most welcome.
>
> Works fine in IDL 5.4 and 5.5, and Windows 2000.
>

Same for me :)

Martin
