
Subject: Re: testcase

Posted by btupper on Thu, 04 Apr 2002 13:37:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Wed, 3 Apr 2002 20:50:38 -0700, "Pavel Romashkin"

<pavel_romashkin@hotmail.com> wrote:

> "Ben Tupper" <btupper@bigelow.org> wrote

>

>> I just ran through a number of resizes using your program. What you >> describe does not match the behavior I see on this machine.

>>

>> IDL> print, !version

>> { x86 Win32 Windows Microsoft Windows 5.5 Aug 28 2001 32 64

>

> Ben! Win 32?! What's that, treason? I thought you were a Mac guy.

> Ok, that leaves just myself I guess. I might as well follow Thierry to > Luxemburg.

> Cheers,

> Pavel

>

> P.S. I ran IDL today on a PC too, but for the sole reason of having no > serial port on the Mac to connect the prototyping board to. My colleague has > just tested tis new G4 to run some code in 12 min that his Sun took 1.5 hrs > to finish, so Macs are not out of the picture.

> Disclaimer: this is NOT an invitation to a processor speed fight.

>

>

Hi Pavel,

No, not treason. We have all the flavors here, but I have Windows at home... I suppose that voluntarily operating Windows is a spritual quest, something like wearing a horse-hair shirt.

Ben
