I often find my self in need of a file that contains information specific to a user or application, such as axis settings, or file locations, stuff that needs to be adjustable, but mostly stays the same. Usually I cobble together a few functions and a text file with some kind of format.

I've had a look on the web, but could not find anything specific enough. This might be because I use the wrong search terms.

Is there a IDL function library somewhere that provides a generalised 'preferences' or options system?

Does anybody else have the same need?

Niel
