Subject: Re: Redhat 7.2/IDL 5.5a oddity (long)
Posted by Bruce Bowler on Thu, 18 Jul 2002 19:11:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Thu, 18 Jul 2002 14:06:32 -0400, Liam E. Gumley wrote:

> Bruce Bowler wrote:
>> Pardon the ignorant question, but ever since upgrading to RH7.2 and >> IDL5.5 (and subsequently 5.5a), whenever I fire up IDL, I get the >> following message...
>>
>> Warning: Cannot find Visual of class PseudoColor for display :0.0
>>
>> help,/device shows
>
> [stuff deleted]
>
>
>> my idl_startup file only mucks around with !path. What do I need to do >> to get IDL to stop looking for an PseudoColor visual?
>
> Try this in your startup file:
>
> if !version.os_family eq 'unix' then device, true_color=24 > window, /free, /pixmap, colors=-10
> wdelete, !d.window > device, decomposed=0, retain=2, set_character_size=[10, 12] > device, get_visual_depth=depth > print, 'Display depth: ', depth
> print, 'Color table size: ', !d.table_size

And that produces...

Warning: Cannot find Visual of class PseudoColor for display :0.0
Display depth: 24
Color table size: 256
IDL> exit

--
 +------------------+-------------------------------- ------------+
Bruce Bowler | Music is the meditation between the intellectual
1.207.633.9600 | and the sensuous life. - Beethoven
bbowler@bigelow.org |
 +------------------+-------------------------------- ------------+