

---

Subject: Re: reading matlab save files

Posted by Michael Henschel on Tue, 16 Jul 2002 02:06:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

After some slight debugging in the matlab, it works quite nicely. Do you want the debugged matlab?

Michael

Ben Tupper wrote:

> On Thu, 11 Jul 2002 22:43:14 +0200, Reimar Bauer

> <r.bauer@fz-juelich.de> wrote:

>

>> yesterday I read something about a gen_write routine for idl and matlab >> at Ben's page.

>>

>> <http://www.tidewater.net/~pemaquid/>

>>

> Hi,

>

> The gen_write and gen_read routines are under development to > facilitate passing data between IDL, MatLab, and (eventually) LabView.

> These are modeled after Liam Gumley's slick BinRead and BinWrite > routines. These use standard tags that describe the data size, > endian-ness, row/column major ordering and an optional tag. They have > not been tested much. The format is *not* .m file nor the IDL .sav > file formats.

>

> Ben

---