
Subject: CoolHelp update

Posted by btupper on Fri, 16 Aug 2002 21:14:29 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hello all,

CoolHelp data and code have been updated. Each is available at <http://www.tidewater.net/~pemaquid> as separate zipped archives.

Of all the modifications the most important is due acknowledgement of the the kind folk who provided the original data. The help text file is derived from the IDLWave emacs distribution. You can learn more about IDLWave at <http://www.IDLWave.org>. Thanks, JD!

One modification that might be confusing from those who have used CoolHelp: the BRIEF keyword has been bumped by a new NOGUI keyword. The BRIEF keyword now means (rightly) that the output should be simply the syntax statement regardless of the GUI mode (GUI or no GUI). Use the sticky NOGUI keyword to suppress the GUI and simply show the help text in the output log.

Thanks for the feedback - it really helps.

Please send all donations to me (please - no pennies or WorldCom stock certificates) and send all complaints to Andrew.

Best Wishes,
Ben
