Alright, our first volunteer! He gets a free copy of my next book, whenever I write it. :-)

Under separate cover you will receive three text files and an article template.

The Files:

  bitwise_operators.txt  - Piece of cake (10 minutes, max).
  list_matching.txt - JD's done all the work, will have to
  extending_obj_methods.txt  - right up your alley (1.0 hr).

Send them back to me. I'll have a quick looky-see and run them by the Chairman. If he approves, I'll get them on the site that day. If you are really anal, you can make sure they pass muster with the HTML
police:

  http://www.htmlhelp.com/tools/validator/

The template has a place to insert an image. If your article doesn't use images,  you can delete this bit.
Put your name in the "Author" part. And I'll be sure to make a note of it where people can see it. You will have to add your own PayPal account information. :-)

Thanks, Mark!

Cheers,

David
