Subject: Re: IDLWAVE convert end to endfor?
Posted by JD Smith on Wed, 28 May 2003 00:25:44 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Tue, 27 May 2003 12:19:02 -0700, Rob wrote:

> Newbie question... In looking back over the IDLWAVE user manual since > installing v.5.0 I noticed that in the tutorial it says that END is > converted to ENDFOR automatically for a for loop. My IDLWAVE has never > done this, in version 4.16 or the new 5.0. Is there a setting I can set > to have this done? Thanks.

Yes, it's not on by default. You have to configure the variable idlwave-expand-generic-end. The easiest way is to M-x customize-variable it. Or you can examine the ".emacs" sections of the manual which shows this being set with other settings in your customization file. That one saves me lots of times, especially when I forget where I am in some deeply nested if..then..else..if block.

JD