Subject: Re: Who's up for breaking IDL?
Posted by timrobishaw on Sun, 03 Aug 2003 13:25:25 GMT

David Fanning <david@dfanning.com> wrote in message
news:<MPG.19962a27116012e29896c2@news.frii.com>...
> Tim Robishaw writes:
>
>> What this suggests to me >> is that you cannot have a file that stores a routine and name it with >> capital letters. That is >> dumb. Someone please tell me that I'm right???
>
> Uh, well, I think this has been well known since > about 1956. :-)
>
> Cheers,
>
> David

Woah! 1956! Man, I thought I had been around a while. Never came across this one (well, that's also cuz I never name my files with capitals; but my advisor was about to attack his monitor when I decided to seek expert counseling.) Man, I looked everywhere for help: ?resolve_routine, Google newsgroups, some Fanning guy's book.
Well, I won't get fooled again. But am I right? Isn't this dumb? I mean, what a bug!

-Tim.