Subject: Re: where is my plot....
Posted by William Thompson on Tue, 29 Jul 2003 15:34:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

My own approach is to put the line

idl.retain: 2

in .Xresources. That way, it's tied to the display rather than to the CPU.

William Thompson

Mike Chinander wrote:
> In article <54305f0c.0307261243.73bf0b2e@posting.google.com>,
> proxima <seanjao@yahoo.com> wrote:
>
>> Hi there,
>>
>> I am using IDL 5.5a on RedHat 6.2. A simple plot like scattered points >> is plotted on the xterm window. If I move another xterm window on top >> of it and move the top one around like an "eraser". The plot is gone !
>>
>> Other case is that if this plot window is behind anther xterm window.
>> After plotting it and bring the plot window forward, nothing is shown.
>>
>> What is wrong with it?
>>
>
>
> before you open a plot window, run or put in your startup file:
>
> device, retain=2
>
> Hope that helps,
>
> --Mike
>