

---

Subject: Re: lens distortion

Posted by Ale on Fri, 19 Sep 2003 14:41:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Before my message on thi newsgroup I seached a l ot with Gogle but I haven't find anything interesting .

Did you find something ?

Thank you

"Timm Weitkamp" <timm.weitkamp@nowhere.edu> ha scritto nel messaggio news:Pine.LNX.4.44.0309181404520.12470-100000@localhost.localdomain...

> On 16.09.03 at 22:10 -0000, Ale wrote:

>

>> I need to develop an IDL routine to correct lens distortion

>> (barrel/pincushion) for our CT camera. Where could I find suggestions or >> examples on this topics ?

>

> Google for "idl" and "pin-cushion". Plenty of results, and even some > potentially useful ones.

>

> Good luck

> Timm

>

> BTW: Sometimes you find a web entry that makes reference to a user-written

> IDL routine, but you can't seem to find the code of the routine anywhere.

> In those cases, googling for the starting line of the code sometimes > helps. Say you're looking for a procedure called "foo", then google for

> "pro foo" to find the code.

>

> --

> Timm Weitkamp <<http://people.web.psi.ch/weitkamp>>

>

---