Subject: Re: Button (etc.) events
Posted by sterner on Tue, 28 Feb 1995 17:10:09 GMT

sjt@xuna.sr.bham.ac.uk (James Tappin) writes:

. . .
> At present buttons return an event only for the left mouse button. I > would like to be able to return events from all buttons (with an > EVENT.BUTTON field to identify which button was used) so that it would be > possible (say) to have an arrangement where LEFT BUTTON = do action, > RIGHT BUTTON = display help text.

. . .
> How do other users feel about this? Should we lean on RSI?

I like the idea. However, it would cause portability problems for computers with mice with button deficit disorder. I like mice with lots of buttons, the more the better.

Ray Sterner   sterner@tesla.jhuapl.edu
The Johns Hopkins University   North latitude 39.16 degrees.
Applied Physics Laboratory   West longitude 76.90 degrees.
Laurel, MD 20723-6099
WWW Home page: ftp://fermi.jhuapl.edu/www/s1r/people/res/res.html