
Subject: Re: Map_set headache

Posted by David Oesch on Tue, 17 Feb 2004 15:13:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I just solved this problem...obviously some settings were messed up.. so what I do is just calling another idl session with the running batch process using SPAWN....

> Hi folks...

>

> map_set is giving me some headache since days...I'm trying to create > in batch modus under linux some maps (shell script is calling up IDL > and starting the progs). The problem is this

> When calling map_set while being in the batch routines with the > following arguments:

> map_set,47.6445,9.29510,LIMIT=[47.4520,8.77010,47.8370,9.820 10]

> IDL returns:

> MAP_SET_LIMITS: Warning, MAP limits are invalid.

>

> Well, If I just state this command not being in the batch modus:

> everything is going to be fine....

>

> Any ideas? are the !MAP parameters messed up? Is there a way to set > them back to standards? I tried also the SCALE keyword, which works, > but because I got quite a bunch of maps with different scales...no > way....

> Thanks for your hints in advance...

>

> Dave

>
