
Subject: Re: d histograms

Posted by velt on Sat, 18 Mar 1995 18:45:47 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In article <1995Mar7.170351.21213@leeds.ac.uk>, aaron@p9news.leeds.ac.uk (Aaron Turner) writes:

- > I am trying to use PV-Wave to display a discrete data of x,y,z form.
- > Because it is discrete neither surface nor shade_surf are appropriate
- > but I can find no way to easily produce a 3d histogram and would like
- > to avoid writing the code to produce one if it has already been done.
- > Is a PV-WAVE program available to produce 3d shaded histograms from ftp?

I don't know about PV-Wave, but in IDL there is a users-library function called LEGO. It's pretty old (1991), so it may also be available in PV-Wave.

Robert Velthuisen (velt@rad.usf.edu),
Digital Medical Imaging Program of the
H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center and Research Institute at the University of South Florida, Tampa FL 33612.
