

---

Subject: Re: does the image size matters?

Posted by [Chris\[1\]](#) on Mon, 14 Jun 2004 20:19:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

"Adhara" <adhara@hotmai.com> wrote in message

news:4cbae60f.0406140728.4606308c@posting.google.com...

> Thank you, let me explain you the situation:

> 1. I did the program first to run for one array, as follows:

>

> archivo = READ_ASCII(FILEPATH('gv04.bit', ROOT_DIR='c:\', $ > SUBDIRECTORY=['RSI','IDL55','lib']))

>

> archivo = READ_ASCII(FILEPATH('gv04.bit'))

> WRITE_TIFF,'gv04.tif',archivo.FIELD01

> end

>

> 2. It worked for 50x50, and I actually produced the image. I tried the > same program but for 200x200, and an error message appears saying:

> % Tag name FIELD01 is undefined for structure <Anonymous>.

> % Execution halted at: $MAIN$ 5

IDL has a peculiar naming procedure for the field element in the structure returned by "read_ascii" when you do it without a template. Put a "stop" after your call to "read_ascii", and when the program halts, type in

help, archivo, /struct

This will tell you the field name (I think it will be something like field001)

Chris

---