
Subject: Re: Calling a Python script from IDL

Posted by Michael Wallace on Sun, 11 Jul 2004 22:54:22 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

>> Is there a way to call a Python script from within IDL and have it >> return information to the IDL program? (Python is an object-oriented >> scripting language similar to perl and java). I'm working on >> visualizing huge amounts of data in an IDL widget, and a python script >> to parse through this data is already in existence.
>> Thanks,
>> Leslie Welser

You could open a python process with SPAWN and then use shared memory to send data between the processes. Since you're working on "huge amounts of data," shared memory would probably be the easiest way to go. The gotcha to this is that you will probably have to be careful how you read/write data to the shared memory to make sure that values are converted between IDL and Python correctly. Don't know if that helps or not. Happy trails,

-Mike
