
Subject: Re: IDL code to read MSU and HIRS in Level1b
Posted by David Fanning on Fri, 20 Aug 2004 16:58:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

R.G. Stockwell writes:

- > The part I am really impressed with is the very low number of
- > "crush kill destroy" occurrences. R. Stockwell has about a CKD incident
- > every 10 spam emails, which has resulted in multiple meatware failures
- > here at CoRA.

We programmed in an almost unlimited tolerance for dumb questions by having the robot learn from his own experience. But what we can't seem to get right is the irritation factor when people want to get something for nothing. It's almost like there is a short circuit there. We are still investigating...

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>
