Subject: Re: Can somebody explain this? Posted by K. Bowman on Thu, 16 Sep 2004 14:42:54 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In article <41499b92$1@x-privat.org>, "sandrokan" <mura@remove.ifsi.rm.cnr.it> wrote:

- > Thank you. At least, it is reported somewhere; anyway, I find it quite
- > dangerous to introduce
- > such a feature for array subscripting and not for scalars.

Well, like a number of IDL features, it is handy if you know about it, dangerous if you don't. ;-)

> It is similar to > permit "for" loops for > not-integer values without accuracy.... > for i=0., 10, .1 do print, i > > > 7.70000

My advice to students is simple: understand roundoff error and don't index loops with FLOATs unless you know exactly what you are doing.

Ken

> 7.79999