
Subject: Re: Read old CPET scanner .img files
Posted by pugachevat on Thu, 21 Oct 2004 02:41:12 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dear Mark,

Does your boss know that you posting a message to this newsgroup?

Your company has already submitted some 510K paperwork claiming that you have tested such capability with your product several years ago. Are you now saying you lost your IDL source code for reading these images? Is MIMVista Corporation claiming now that it lied to the FDA???

Or does your boss not want to steal more code without paying for it? He hasn't paid a dime to the developer for all the code and intellectual property developed by others over the past 16 years. Why don't you use the IDL code you have in your possession now? Or is it, you don't know how to call the IDL routines properly or your boss forgot how to? Such a pity for someone to lose their memory. He developed all original code himself - or so he claims on your website.

Your posting and newsgroup request will be forwarded to your government's FDA.

Good luck finding what you lost.

By the way, for others reading this post, Mark already knows where to obtain the IDL procedures he requested.

Good Luck Tina
