Subject: Re: converting map projections in IDL and ENVI
Posted by enod on Sat, 20 Nov 2004 15:27:17 GMT

There is no need to specify the upper-left pixel coordinates in the projection conversion process. Only when you import a registered image and the map infomation is not read successfully, you should specify the projection and map information manually.

Tian

PieterBeck wrote:
> Dear forum users,
> I want to convert the projection of georeferenced images whereby I specify > the coordinates of the upper left pixel in the resulting image (so the > pixel exactly match other georefenced images I have). The ENVI GUI > convert map projection function allows for this. However I need to use > IDL commands. Unfortunately, the envi_convert_file_map_projection doesn't > allow me to specify the coordinates of the upper left pixel in the result > image, as far I can tell. Any suggestions for doing it anyway?
>
> Thank you in advance,
> Pieter Beck
> University of Tromsø