
Subject: Re: WINDOW procedure and SET_X_BID keyword
Posted by David Fanning on Tue, 18 Jan 2005 17:40:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Rob writes:

> Well, I am glad you saved that documentation! I have done some testing > without using WDELETE, but that's where I see the X server process grow > and grow. It would seem that IDL is allocating its own Pixmaps even > though I provide the Pixmap id to use.
>
> I am calling something like this to get the window "allocated":
>
> WINDOW, /FREE, /PIXMAP, XSIZE=nn, YSIZE=nn, set_x_bid=nn
> Does that seem right?

That looks right according to the documentation. But this is old, old stuff, that was NEVER officially documented.
I wouldn't build an important application with it, if you know what I mean. :-)

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>
