

---

Subject: Re: Writing output files with ION/Script
Posted by enod on Thu, 20 Jan 2005 13:48:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Yeah. One can use IDL in ION Script to store the data in *any* file format that IDL can handle.

Tian

Haje Korth wrote:

> Wayne,
> the PNG and JPEG format is only for display in the browser. No one prevents > you from creating postscript files in ION, which can be downloaded using a > download script. I do this all the time.
>
> Haje
>
> "Wayne Landsman" <landsman@sampa.gsfc.nasa.gov> wrote in message > news:csjsl4$poes1@skates.gsfc.nasa.gov...
>> The ION page on RSI's website (<http://www.rsinc.com/ion/>) gives the >> wavelet demo ( <http://ion.researchsystems.com/IONScript/wavelet/>).
>> One nice feature of this demo is the ability to save the output image as >> a postscript (or EPS) file. However, as far as I can tell from the >> ION/Script documentation the only available output image formats are >> PNG, PNG24 and JPEG24. The source code is not available for this >> site -- perhaps they use some non-ION/Script elements to get the >> postscript output?
>>
>> What I would really like to do is be able to output a binary (FITS) file >> after the user has modified an image.
>>
>> Thanks, --Wayne Landsman
>>

---