Folks,

This is my last post here (shy of 10,000 posts, I think).
I've been touring college campuses with my middle son the past week and I have decided to return to college and study either Musical Theater (if I can learn to sing, which is doubtful) or Film and Video Production.

That is, I will be if I can overcome the strong feelings of fear I have upon entering unisex bathrooms. (In my day we thought we were on the cutting edge with coed dorms.) I'm pretty sure I would have been arrested 30 years ago for going into the places I was forced to go into on this trip. And I still can't help thinking the sheriff is going to clap me in irons every time I make eye contact with these pretty coeds in their, uh, pajamas. :-(

No wonder people don't seem to be able to write computer programs as well as they used to....

Cheers,

David
