
Subject: Re: deleting a window created with `envi_info_wid`

Posted by Jeff N. on Wed, 20 Apr 2005 20:40:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Francois,

Any time I have created widgets using ENVI routines, I've always created my base widget using `WIDGET_AUTO_BASE`, and managed it with `AUTO_WID_MNG`. `AUTO_WID_MNG` automatically creates and handles OK and Cancels buttons. If you can, I'd try using these routines in your code and see if you can get the results you want that way.

Jeff

Francois L. wrote:

```
> Thank you for the answer.
> What about destroying the window if created as follow:
>
>   tlb = widget_base(title='Process completed...', column=1, > xsize=256,ysize=128)
>   wtext = widget_base(tlb, /column)
>   message1 = widget_label(wtext,value = 'Please process to step 2', > /align_left)
>
>   widget_control,tlb,/realize
>
> Thanks,
>
> Francois.
>
>
>
>
> "David Fanning" <davidf@dfanning.com> wrote in message
> news:MPG.1ccdb2a69046e6869899cb@news.frii.com...
>> Francois L. writes:
>>
>>> How a window created with envi_info_wid can be deleted ?
>>>
>>>     str = 'hello world'
>>>     envi_info_wid, str, title='information'
>>>
>>> Does it have a window number so I can use wdelete ?
>>
>> Not knowing a thing about ENVI, I would try something >> like this:
>>
```

```
>> str = 'hello world'
>> envi_info_wid, str, title='information'
>> envi_window = !D.Window
>> WDelete, envi_window
>>
>> Cheers,
>>
>> David
>> --
>> David Fanning, Ph.D.
>> Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
>> Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
```
