Robi writes:

> Does anybody have any clever kludge for saving your IDL history across > sessions, such that the next time you start IDL it can recall commands > that had been entered prior to exiting the previous IDL session? The > possibility of this looks bleak since it looks like you can't really > futz with the recall buffer in IDL... once you log on it starts fresh.
> But just in case somebody had ever considered this and found it > impossible, well, then I could just go to bed and never worry about it > ever again.

Good night! :-)

Cheers,

David

P.S. I assume you are NOT using the fab IDLWAVE mode, which can do everything.

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/