

---

Subject: Re: CURSOR problems

Posted by Ken Mankoff on Wed, 24 Aug 2005 00:46:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

On Tue, 23 Aug 2005, Kenneth Bowman wrote:

> In article <1124800745.178227.298470@g47g2000cwa.googlegroups.com>,

> "Patrick Broos" <patb@astro.psu.edu> wrote:

>

>> I don't have any ideas on your xterm configuration, but as a

>> Solaris user just moving to OS-X I do have a suggestion about >> xterms: leave them behind!

>

> I second this idea with one caveat. If you use a lot of X-windows > applications and need to cut and paste between them, use xterm.

> If you want to be able to cut and paste between OS X applications, > use Terminal.app (or alternatives, I'm not familiar with iTerm).

>

OK, I'm thinking of making the switch. Everything works well so far.

But I figure I might as well go all the way, and switch from the X emacs (mine is installed via fink) to the Aqua Emacs.app. Emacs.app runs IDLWAVE fine, but not IDLWAVE help because I can't get it running w3m. Googling for emacs.app and w3m turns up suprisingly few results. Any suggestions?

-k.

---