I'm sure that IDL can read shapefiles, but I'm not positive about the other vector formats (I'd guess DXF can probably be read). I've never done any of that though. Let me ask you...are you specifically trying to avoid using ENVI? Like maybe you need to run code on a machine that has IDL but not ENVI? Because if you're not trying to avoid ENVI specifically and are just trying to make something happen programatically that you've done interactively with ENVI, you should be aware that there are a lot of IDL routines that you get with ENVI that allow you to manipulate ENVI from an IDL program. This might make your life a lot easier.
