

---

Subject: Re: MAP_SET Aspect Ratio
Posted by afl on Mon, 05 Jun 1995 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

In article <3qo3f2$i5@smoke.ups.edu>, cavin@odin.ups.edu (Colby Cavin) writes:

|> I just wrote:
|> : Do I really have to tweak the window's scaling factors manually
|> : in order to get a true map projection?
|> No.
|>
|> After messing around with Tech. support for a little while (I thought
|> that they had hung up, but they actually call you back), I found out
|> that they have added a key word to MAP_SET that creates a properly
|> scaled projection. The /ISOTROPIC keyword is available in our
|> version (3.6.1a), but isn't documented in the 3.6 documentation.
|>
|> Have a nice day,
|> Colby Cavin
|> US Geological Survey
|> ccavin@orcakpctm.wr.usgs.gov

Right on! Sorry about the "isometric" blunder,
I must have been doing my exercises at the time!

--

Andrew F. Loughe                      email: afl@cdc.noaa.gov
University of Colorado, CIRES        voice: (303) 492-0707
Campus Box 449                        fax: (303) 497-7013
Boulder, CO 80309-0449 USA

---